In 2009, 41 years after the first national women's liberation conference was held right here in Chicago, many women still don't talk openly and honestly about their bodies, their passions and least of all, sex..

Eight brave women are talking, dancing, laughing and even shouting in this production. They're saying what others dare not. If you're brave enough to listen, to feel, to laugh, join us for an afternoon of honesty. And if you're really brave, join us in our next production on stage.
